

The laurel crown

In ancient Greece and Rome, the laurel crown was the symbol of victory. In Florence, during the time of Dante Alighieri, the laurel crown came to represent the brilliant poet. In paintings Dante always wears a laurel crown on his head and holds a copy of the Divine Comedy in his hands.

